

a natural state

Artist: Janet Orselli

Video 5: Tryon Installation Project, Part B: Nest Bed

This piece is called nest bed, which is part of this whole bedroom kind of scene. And it is really interesting. I love to see children come and look at this piece. They get so excited they come running over and "Oh a nest" and adults it's very different for adults and they think of it "what does this mean?" like it's a puzzle like there is one right answer like there is one right way to see these nests and the they usually say nests "Nests and beds..There is a connection there" and it is all very logical and very rational and I guess in allot of my work. I want that reaction of the child. I want that immediate reaction, that very spontaneous reaction, that very much has to do with the senses and just the excitement of seeing something like nests that you don't expect to see in a hole grouping of them indoors and within a bed frame and just that excitement of something different and the surprise of it.