

a natural state

Artist: Arianne King Comer

Video 3: Adesola Falade

Adesola: I came to South Carolina at least three and a half years now. So when Arianne came to Nigeria in 1992, she met me through the lady I was working with. And then when I got to the States four years ago, she brought me down here. It's three and a half years now.

So when I get here, I figured I could do the indigo processing. That is the reason why I was here today. I think, in Nigeria, the way we do the indigo processing...here, they are doing the same thing...long time ago.

And, also, about the climate of South Carolina, it's very similar to Nigeria. And those that are living here, they are very lonely as the way we lived in Nigeria. Instead of living in a big community, I live in a small community. I have a big family, but the way I live personally, it's very small...[indecipherable], like about three people every three houses where I live in Nigeria.

End.
