

a natural state

Artist: Arianne King Comer

Video 4: The Land, Part A: Island Home

King: That's moss. Oh, moss.

These trees are longer than they are tall. They're growing across the street.

They're just things that, that got my attention. And my first thought is, "I could spend the rest of my life getting used to this." That's the first thing that struck me.

And then I started walking around. And then I tried to find the edge of the land here, since I knew this is an island. And the other part was how friendly everybody was. And everything was a story. So, when you ask a question and they answer you in a story.

The first one was, in fact, "Tell me how this island was six by twenty-one miles." And this way is six miles, and this way is, you know, the twenty-one. And if you go the twenty-one, then you're going to go where the, the shrimp boats are.

I mean, it's the reference of how...and I was so enchanted with how they explained things in reference to the terrain.

End.