

Transcript for Minority Business:

Interviewer: You didn't have to go out of your community for much because you had your own businesses.

Henry: Yes, I remember my father having a grocery store here and I think Mr. Joe Lawrence had a grocery store here. You could get what you needed pretty much from here to Summerville. Actually there was an indian school in Summerville also. So you had a lot of the same people here that was in Summerville. So you had to the tri-county area from here to Summerville and monks corner that you could go shopping.

Interviewer: Did you step outside of your community?

Henry: Yeah, we went where we wanted to go at North Charleston, Columbia, Orangeburg. No matter where it was we didn't have no big problems.

Interviewer: When you stepped out of your community did people know that you were indian?

Henry: Oh yeah, they knew we were indian yeah. We didn't have no problem with that, but if you were indian nobody wanted to have anything to do with you. Over the years we did quit well with being indian. Because people realized that Interviewer: the other folks had to get along with the indian community is that what your saying?

Henry: Exactly right.

End of Video