Boyd Saunders - Step 5: Printing

Saunders: This one- everything about it is going to be the same color. So this is going to be a one-color etching.

This paper has been soaking in the water so it's nice and soft, and any excess water has been blotted away. [Puts down paper.] I'm not just throwing it down on here; I actually have some marks for where I want it to go.

Then we're going to cover it with these soft felt blankets. This first blanket is a very thin piece of felt. It's called a sizing catcher. Its primary function is to catch the water and mess that comes out of the paper.

This next one is nice and thick and spongy. It's called a cushion.

And then this last one is quite hard. It's called a pusher.

[Turns wheel.] All right. Now comes the magic moment. As if by magic... see there? [Shows etching.]

Video repeats.
